

Wiz Kid

to
live the life of
an artist
(they tell me)
is to live
for small

you can not desire the whole picture

because for
most people
success
is getting
a good job
and finishing the race
with something
to show for themselves

a banker is
never expected
to be anything besides
a banker

but to be an artist
if you don't achieve world fame
you are considered
a failure

if you don't
break the surface
of what society
expects
you are considered

a person who never

realized their dreams

put into action
their potential

but to me
it seems that it is
the other people
the bankers
the lawyers
that let their dreams fade
away like
old
photographs
without
frames

and the artist
is the
true
success
without fame
or fortune
because they were able to do something that
made them
happy

that defined passion
and brought something
new into the world
rather than simply continuing
what was already started...

to live the
life of an

is to live for small things

or so
they
tell me
